

ABSTRACT

In one embodiment, an illumination apparatus structured for use in association with a utility structure is provided. The illumination apparatus includes a main housing having a light source operatively associated with the main housing; and, at least one pedestal assembly detachably connected to the main housing, at least one of the pedestal assemblies having at least one set of jaws structured for receiving a portion of a cable therein.